Al Capone Taken To Eastern Hospital, Chicago Hears

TO REMAIN NORTH

Prison Term Ends Officially Next Wednesday

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 — Al Capone, one-time Chicago gang overlord, has already been released from federal prison at Terminal Island, Calif., but "is a sick and broken man," the Chicago Herald-American stated today in an exclusive story.

Capone in all probability may never return to Chicago again, the newspaper stated.

For many months he will be confined to a hospital in the East, where he will recuperate from the ravages of an illness which showed itself while he was incarcerated at grim Alcatraz prison in San Francisco Bay, the story said.

Not To Go South

"He will not return to his home on Palm Island, near Miami, Fla., as previously announced, at least until he has recovered," the story, based on information obtained at Washington, D. C., declared.

"Capone will not see any of his former associates, but only members of his family. His brother Ralph is with him now."

Capone is still in technical custody until Wednesday, when his prison term for income tax evasion officially ends, the Herald-American said. Describing his release, the paper stated:

"With the greatest secrecy ever afforded a government prisoner he was taken (from Terminal Island) by boat to the mainland at San Pedro, Calif., where he was placed on a slow train for the East.

"This was on November 4, one day after his representatives paid $20,000, the remainder of his fine, to Hoyt King, clerk of the federal district court in Chicago."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—The whereabouts of Al Capone, completing sentence for income tax evasion in federal prison, became quite a mystery today following

Nazi Planes Cross Paris First Time

French Flee Residences As Siren Sounds For Hour; No Bombs Dropped

PARIS, Nov. 13 — For the second time in twelve hours, the anti-aircraft guns of Paris opened up this afternoon to repel invading German airplanes.

PARIS Nov. 13—For the first time since the European war began, German planes flew over Paris last night, it was revealed today.

This flight was responsible, it appeared, for the air raid warning which routed Parisians from bed at 4:30 a. m. and sent them scurrying to shelters for almost an hour.

Sirens sounded the "all clear" signal at 5:15 a. m.

Belgium Violated

When they were fired on by anti-aircraft guns, they departed towards Belgium. French authorities said they apparently "again violated" Belgium's aerial neutrality.

No bombings by the German planes were reported.

Meanwhile, reports from the front stated aerial activity increased there greatly yesterday. Pursuit and observation planes were busy on both sides of the front, and also on each side of the Rhine River.

Ground activity, according to

SELF INFLICTED WOUND FATAL TO LOCAL RESIDENT

Mrs. Eloda Timmons, 68, of 146 Walnut Street, died in Berger Hospital about noon Sunday of a self inflicted bullet wound in the right temple. Despondency over ill health is believed to have caused Mrs. Timmons to take her life. A verdict of suicide was returned by Coroner C. E. Bowers.

Mrs. Timmons fired a .22 calibre bullet into her temple from a pistol. She was removed to Berger Hospital in the Rinehart ambulance. She died about three hours later.

Mrs. Timmons was born in Pickaway County on February 6, 1871, a daughter of Jacob and Cynthia Marion Justus. She was married September 5, 1896 in Mt. Sterling to Frank M. Timmons, who died in 1937. Mrs. Timmons was a member of St. Philip's Episcopal Church.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Ralph Walters of Jackson Township; one son, Willard, Walnut Street; a sister, Mrs. Nelson Winfough of Five Points; four brothers, Willard Justus of Jackson Township, and George, Charles and Levi Justus, all of Columbus, and five grandchildren.

The body will be at the home after 6 p. m. Monday where friends may call up to the time of the services.

LINER REPORTS BRIT FREIGHTER SUNK IN OCEAN

BOSTON, Nov. 13—Destruction of a convoyed British freighter by a German submarine which wormed its way through a destroyer guard to sink its victim was revealed today by members of the crew of the British liner Nova Scotia.

Identity of the sunken ship was withheld by members of the Nova Scotia's crew who said survivors of the torpedoed craft were picked up by other vessels in a 17-ship convoy which was screened by two destroyers when the attack occurred.

Naval officers aboard the destroyers, the British seamen said, expressed belief that the submarine was sunk by depth bombs catapulted overboard by the destroyers.

The submarine made its successful penetration of the destroyer screen at a point about 300 miles off the English coast.

ROOSEVELT AND GARNER REPORTED IN AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Fresh speculation over President Roosevelt's plans for 1940 flooded the capital today in the wake of disclosure that Vice President John Nance Garner will be a candidate for the top Democratic nomination, whether or not his "boss" seeks a third term.

The Garner move provoked rumors that Mr. Roosevelt and his vice president came to a definite understanding about 1940 before "Cactus Jack" left for his Texas home after the end of the special session of congress.

One Garner confidant insisted the vice president had assurances Mr. Roosevelt would not seek a third term.

Russian Press In Bitter Attack, Citing Expense Of Preparations

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 13—With Soviet-Finnish negotiations apparently at the breaking point, the Finnish government decided today to recall the delegation which has been negotiating regarding Russia's demands at Moscow.

The decision was reached after Finnish Finance Minister V. A. Tanner, a member of the delegation, telephoned from the Soviet capital, announcing that the delegates had decided to return, presumably this evening, unless there were unforseen developments.

Simultaneously, a feeling of unrest and nervousness grew in Helsingfors as it became evident that the negotiations have struck a serious snag and the Soviet press directed violent attacks on Finland.

(At Moscow, the Tass (Russian) news agency circulated a dispatch from Helsingfors claiming that Finland's war measures were costing 40,000,000 marks daily. The report added that the Finnish population was "suffering" and disaffection would grow unless Finland demobilized at an early date.

(The Finnish government, Tass added, "clearly does not want an agreement with the Soviets.")

Erkko Sounds Call

The apparent crisis between Russia and Finland arose after Finnish Foreign Minister Elias Erkko declared the delegation would return from Moscow shortly and added that Finland, in its most recent proposals to the Soviet Union, had "in principle

FRIGID WEATHER HELPS TRAP TWO YOUNG OUTLAWS

ST. IGNACE, Mich., Nov. 13—Two young bandits captured half-frozen in the woods near here yesterday were returned to Wisconsin today to face murder charges in connection with the death of Police Chief Roland S. Payne of Wisconsin Rapids.

Chief Payne died of heart disease Friday when the two youths escaped from his automobile, in which they were being taken to Wisconsin Rapids to face car theft charges.

The pair, Robert Noel, 17, of Dearborn, Mich., and Nelson Pasha, of Mosinee, Wis., were tracked into the northern woods near St. Ignace Saturday night. All night a posse of state and city police attempted to run down the youths in the light snow that was falling.

Bloodhounds were used on their trail.

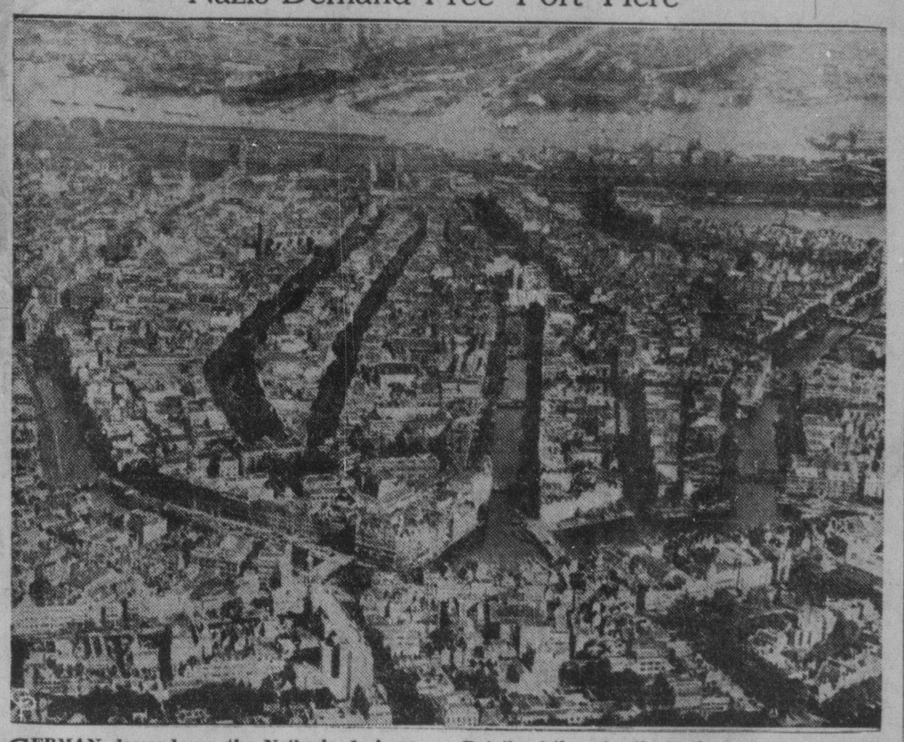

Yesterday Noel and Pasha surrendered on a blockaded highway, driven from the woods by the cold.

Although they waived extradition, authorities said they would be arraigned in circuit court today before being turned over to Wisconsin police.

Deputy Sheriff Cliff Bluett, with Payne in the car from which the youths escaped, said the pair fired a shot at the officers before escaping. The bullet, he said, went through his coat, but did not wound him. Pasha and Noel left Bluett handcuffed to the dead Payne.

Payne collapsed with the heart attack as he battled the pair in the rear seat of the automobile.

Byrd Cruiser in Boston; Plays Havoc With Traffic

BOSTON, Nov. 13—Completing the final leg of a 1,000 mile journey from Chicago started 22 days ago, Admiral Richard E. Byrd's giant snow cruiser arrived in Boston today.

The last leg was a 25-mile jaunt started before dawn from the Framingham state police barracks. Final destination was the army base at South Boston where the huge lumbering 37-ton vehicle was to be loaded hastily aboard the South Pole bound motorship North Star.

Unprecedented traffic jams were caused yesterday as more than 2,000,000 persons in a line stretching entirely across the state, welcomed the huge "road hog" as it entered Massachusetts from New York near Pittsfield, and made its perilous way up and down the Berkshire hills, and across the Bay state.

State police in cruising cars and on motorcycles "ran interference," diverting an estimated 270,000 automobiles from the route. But the jam of sightseers was terrific and became worse as the cruiser came closer to Boston.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, designer and operator of the craft which has 22 control gadgets, was nearly exhausted from the nervous tension when he arrived at Framingham at dusk Sunday.

He was urged to continue to Boston in the hope of arriving before midnight but when told

QUAKE LASTING 40 SECONDS HITS COASTAL REGION

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 13—Disruption of communication in parts of western Washington was reported today to be the major damage of an earthquake felt in northern Oregon, Washington and British Columbia shortly before midnight.

No one was known to have been injured. The tremor lasted an estimated 40 seconds, and caused residents of all communities from Portland, Ore., north to Vancouver, B. C., and east to Spokane, Wash., to flee into the streets at 11:48 o'clock last night.

Three to four distinct shocks were felt throughout the quake area.

Howard A. Coombs, assistant professor of geology at the University of Washington, said the shock was the most severe recorded on the Seattle seismograph in 15 years.

Swaying of a heavy chandelier caused a near panic in a Seattle theatre. Several members of the audience urged others to cease jamming the exits. The crowd then left in an orderly manner.

Telephone lines were disrupted and a few water mains were broken in the Grays Harbor region,

France Demands That Berlin Pay Three Countries For Damages Caused

By International News Service

An unexplained conference at The Hague last night between Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and United States Minister George A. Gordon aroused immediate speculation today as to what part—if any—the United States is taking to prevent possible involvement of Holland in the European war.

The queen and the American minister were reported to have conferred at the royal palace for half an hour. No official information regarding their conversation was forthcoming immediately, but British circles expressed belief that peace moves were discussed.

The entire chain of events indicated the possibility that the peace appeal launched by Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold of the Belgians was receiving added support—this time under the guidance of President Roosevelt.

News of the meeting between the queen and the American diplomat was received in America, significantly, following publication of a dispatch from Washington broadly intimating the vital interest of the United States in the fate of the Netherlands.

Move Considered

The Washington report said that President Roosevelt was considering the advisability of some move to keep Holland out of the European war, adding that the administration was particularly concerned over the Netherlands East Indies.

Should Germany conquer the Netherlands, it said, the United States government feared Japan might take the opportunity to seize the Dutch Asiatic empire.

Finally, it pointed out, along with British Malaya, Dutch Java, Sumatra and Borneo supply a major part of America's vital tin and rubber needs.

The meeting at The Hague also occurred coincidently with another vital conference at Breda, Holland, between the Dutch and Belgian foreign ministers, who closely examined the British and French replies to the peace appeal of Wilhelmina and Leopold.

What conclusion they may have reached was concealed behind an

STATE WITNESS ADMITS CONFAB WITH BUND HEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 — Gustave Elmer, national organizer of the German-American Bund and a state witness against Fritz Kuhn, the Bund leader who is on trial for larceny and forgery, admitted today that he had been consorting with his technical enemy over the week end.

Elmer returned to the witness stand today with his memory refreshed as to the claim that he once had been treasurer of the Bund. When asked how he could now recall the facts that eluded him Friday, he said that he had sat in a long conference yesterday with Kuhn and his retinue of lawyers.

He cautiously recalled that "someone" had jogged his memory yesterday but neither the prosecutor nor the court could get him to identify the "someone." He was certain that it wasn't Kuhn.

QUAKE LASTING 40 SECONDS HITS COASTAL REGION

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 13—Disruption of communication in parts of western Washington was reported today to be the major damage of an earthquake felt in northern Oregon, Washington and British Columbia shortly before midnight.

No one was known to have been injured. The tremor lasted an estimated 40 seconds, and caused residents of all communities from Portland, Ore., north to Vancouver, B. C., and east to Spokane, Wash., to flee into the streets at 11:48 o'clock last night.

Three to four distinct shocks were felt throughout the quake area.

Howard A. Coombs, assistant professor of geology at the University of Washington, said the shock was the most severe recorded on the Seattle seismograph in 15 years.

Swaying of a heavy chandelier caused a near panic in a Seattle theatre. Several members of the audience urged others to cease jamming the exits. The crowd then left in an orderly manner.

Telephone lines were disrupted and a few water mains were broken in the Grays Harbor region,

France Demands That Berlin Pay Three Countries For Damages Caused

By International News Service

An unexplained conference at The Hague last night between Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and United States Minister George A. Gordon aroused immediate speculation today as to what part—if any—the United States is taking to prevent possible involvement of Holland in the European war.

The queen and the American minister were reported to have conferred at the royal palace for half an hour. No official information regarding their conversation was forthcoming immediately, but British circles expressed belief that peace moves were discussed.

The entire chain of events indicated the possibility that the peace appeal launched by Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold of the Belgians was receiving added support—this time under the guidance of President Roosevelt.

News of the meeting between the queen and the American diplomat was received in America, significantly, following publication of a dispatch from Washington broadly intimating the vital interest of the United States in the fate of the Netherlands.

Move Considered

The Washington report said that President Roosevelt was considering the advisability of some move to keep Holland out of the European war, adding that the administration was particularly concerned over the Netherlands East Indies.

Should Germany conquer the Netherlands, it said, the United States government feared Japan might take the opportunity to seize the Dutch Asiatic empire.

Finally, it pointed out, along with British Malaya, Dutch Java, Sumatra and Borneo supply a major part of America's vital tin and rubber needs.

The meeting at The Hague also occurred coincidently with another vital conference at Breda, Holland, between the Dutch and Belgian foreign ministers, who closely examined the British and French replies to the peace appeal of Wilhelmina and Leopold.

What conclusion they may have reached was concealed behind an

STATE WITNESS ADMITS CONFAB WITH BUND HEAD

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 — Gustave Elmer, national organizer of the German-American Bund and a state witness against Fritz Kuhn, the Bund leader who is on trial for larceny and forgery, admitted today that he had been consorting with his technical enemy over the week end.

Elmer returned to the witness stand today with his memory refreshed as to the claim that he once had been treasurer of the Bund. When asked how he could now recall the facts that eluded him Friday, he said that he had sat in a long conference yesterday with Kuhn and his retinue of lawyers.

He cautiously recalled that "someone" had jogged his memory yesterday but neither the prosecutor nor the court could get him to identify the "someone." He was certain that it wasn't Kuhn.

official announcement stating merely that they had "conferred regarding political questions."

France Asks Reparations

With France demanding reparation of the "injustices" to Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland as peace essentials and Britain reiterating that she should fight for "redemption" of Europe from fear of aggression, Europe's war remained virtually at a standstill—save for relatively minor activity on the Western Front—as the world awaited Germany's reply to the Dutch-Belgian mediation offer.

This reply Chancellor Hitler and his closest aides were framing, but when it would be delivered was not known. A complicating factor was the radio address of British First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, who turned the entire force of his celebrated rhetoric against the Germans.

Claiming the sympathy of the United States for the Allies, Churchill castigated "Huns" and the "Prussian menace" and linked the name of Hitler with a rolling phrase—"the frenzy of a cornered maniac."

Nation to Persevere

"We are going to persevere in making war," Churchill told the British empire, "until the other side has had enough."

To all appearances the Russo-Finnish delegations reached a stalemate and the Finnish delegation at Moscow as expected to return to Helsingfors. Claiming President Roosevelt's attitude in this matter is "peculiar and suspicious," one Soviet newspaper wanted an explanation of America's intentions in "so suddenly sympathizing with Finland."

GEAUGA COUNTIANS JOIN TO STOP ALL HUNTERS

CHARDON, Nov. 13—Farmers of Geauga County today were organized in a group to keep trespassing hunters off their lands as an aftermath of the serious wounding of Robert Fenwick, 32, by one of three hunters he ordered off his farm Saturday.

Fenwick, director of the Geauga County Farm Bureau, was believed to be in critical condition at first, but was pronounced "of the danger list" by Corey Hospital attendants.

He was wounded in the abdomen, left hip and thigh when one of the three men turned and shot him after he had ordered them to leave his Claridon Township farm. He lay bleeding and semi-conscious for almost two hours before he was found by his father, Joseph Fenwick and a hired man, Andrew Kovach.

The winners are Festus Hill, 277 votes, and Harry L. Bailey, 276 votes. Both are residents in Monroe Township. Cecil Reid, Muhlenberg Township, was originally listed as a winner. The correct tabulation of Mr. Reid's votes was 265. The Muhlenberg School District was transferred to Monroe School District.

Candidates are urged to submit their expenses accounts to the Board of Elections before Friday. Few have filed accounts to date.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—President Roosevelt scheduled a luncheon conference today with James M. Cox, Ohio publisher and 1920 Democratic presidential nominee whose running mate was the man now occupying the White House.

The White House was silent about any possible political aspects of the call today. It was pointed out rather that Cox was an old friend and that they probably would find occasion to recall the old days of their unsuccessful campaign in 1920 against Harding and Coolidge.

SAM L. CARMEAN IS DEAD AT 73

Williamsport Native Held Prominent Position In Kansas City

Samuel L. Carmean, 73, native of the Williamsport community where he was born June 19, 1866, and who later became a prominent resident of Kansas City, died last Thursday after illness of a year.

Mr. Carmean had served as assistant under four United States district attorneys in Kansas City. He was associated in the law practice with the late James C. Rieger. In 1894 he married Miss Anna M. Kaderly of Lamar, Md., who survives him.

Mr. Carmean was graduated from the Ohio Normal College in Lebanon, O., and admitted to practice law in 1890 by the supreme court at Columbus. Four years later he removed to Kansas City.

He served as city solicitor in 1911 and in May, 1921, was named assistant under C. C. Madison, district attorney. He was retained by three other district attorneys. His ability to prosecute cases and his judgment in numerous court actions brought favorable comment.

He was a lifelong Republican and was mentioned several times for Missouri state offices, but never entered a political race. He was a member of the Northeast Masonic lodge and the Knights of Pythias.

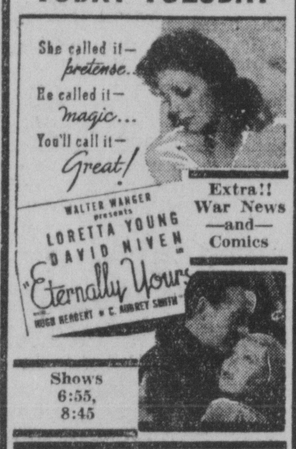

Surviving are his widow, a son James H., of Kansas City; a sister, Mrs. Florence Murry of Olympia, Wash., and a brother, Charles of near Williamsport.

the French, consisted of German reconnaissance patrols west and east of the Saar River. There were no attacks, but the patrols were described as "of a serious nature." All were driven off, it was claimed.

One German patrol in the Western Vosges mountains was surprised and cut down by the French, who said they captured several prisoners.

With light artillery action in progress, it was revealed for the first time that the French heavier guns, with a range of some 20 miles, have been used at various times to cut down attack or patrols thrust forward by the Germans.

These guns, situated along the Maginot line or behind it, also have blasted at the Siegfried line on several occasions.

French authorities denied a German communique which mentioned a French attack in the Pirmasens area. It was stated the French merely reoccupied ground abandoned by the Germans after an unsuccessful "occupational attack."

Spectators, he said, were getting too close to the giant 10-foot diameter wheels of the cruiser — each wheel alone dwarfs an automobile. After an overnight rest, state police called Dr. Poulter and his crew from their beds early this morning, they warmed up the engines 15 minutes beforehand, and with 100 policemen providing an escort, embarked on the final leg of the overland journey. After being loaded on the North Star, the snow cruiser will not operate under her own power again until set down on the trackless snows of Little America.

GEAUGA COUNTIANS JOIN TO STOP ALL HUNTERS

CHARDON, Nov. 13—Farmers of Geauga County today were organized in a group to keep trespassing hunters off their lands as an aftermath of the serious wounding of Robert Fenwick, 32, by one of three hunters he ordered off his farm Saturday.

Fenwick, director of the Geauga County Farm Bureau, was believed to be in critical condition at first, but was pronounced "of the danger list" by Corey Hospital attendants.

He was wounded in the abdomen, left hip and thigh when one of the three men turned and shot him after he had ordered them to leave his Claridon Township farm. He lay bleeding and semi-conscious for almost two hours before he was found by his father, Joseph Fenwick and a hired man, Andrew Kovach.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—President Roosevelt scheduled a luncheon conference today with James M. Cox, Ohio publisher and 1920 Democratic presidential nominee whose running mate was the man now occupying the White House.

The White House was silent about any possible political aspects of the call today. It was pointed out rather that Cox was an old friend and that they probably would find occasion to recall the old days of their unsuccessful campaign in 1920 against Harding and Coolidge.

SAM L. CARMEAN IS DEAD AT 73

Williamsport Native Held Prominent Position In Kansas City

Samuel L. Carmean, 73, native of the Williamsport community where he was born June 19, 1866, and who later became a prominent resident of Kansas City, died last Thursday after illness of a year.

Mr. Carmean had served as assistant under four United States district attorneys in Kansas City. He was associated in the law practice with the late James C. Rieger. In 1894 he married Miss Anna M. Kaderly of Lamar, Md., who survives him.

Mr. Carmean was graduated from the Ohio Normal College in Lebanon, O., and admitted to practice law in 1890 by the supreme court at Columbus. Four years later he removed to Kansas City.

He served as city solicitor in 1911 and in May, 1921, was named assistant under C. C. Madison, district attorney. He was retained by three other district attorneys. His ability to prosecute cases and his judgment in numerous court actions brought favorable comment.

He was a lifelong Republican and was mentioned several times for Missouri state offices, but never entered a political race. He was a member of the Northeast Masonic lodge and the Knights of Pythias.

Surviving are his widow, a son James H., of Kansas City; a sister, Mrs. Florence Murry of Olympia, Wash., and a brother, Charles of near Williamsport.

NAZI AVIATORS GO OVER PARIS

the French, consisted of German reconnaissance patrols west and east of the Saar River. There were no attacks, but the patrols were described as "of a serious nature." All were driven off, it was claimed.

One German patrol in the Western Vosges mountains was surprised and cut down by the French, who said they captured several prisoners.

With light artillery action in progress, it was revealed for the first time that the French heavier guns, with a range of some 20 miles, have been used at various times to cut down attack or patrols thrust forward by the Germans.

These guns, situated along the Maginot line or behind it, also have blasted at the Siegfried line on several occasions.

French authorities denied a German communique which mentioned a French attack in the Pirmasens area. It was stated the French merely reoccupied ground abandoned by the Germans after an unsuccessful "occupational attack."

Legion Scheduling Million Dollar Night To Be December 1

Approximately 65 men, veterans of the World and Spanish American Wars, attended the rabbit supper held by the American Legion Saturday night in observance of Armistice Day.

An informal program was conducted with E. C. Ebert as master of ceremonies. Mr. Ebert called on various veterans to tell where they were 21 years ago when the Armistice was signed. Brief remarks were made by the Spanish-American War veterans.

Karl Herrmann announced plans for the Million Dollar Night to be conducted by the Legion on December 1.

The rabbit supper followed a parade sponsored by the VFW. Music was furnished by the VFW band, drum and bugle corps of the Legion and the Circleville High School senior band. Units participating in addition to the Legionnaires and VFW members were the Circleville unit of the National Guard, Medical Corps, Redmen, Women's Auxiliary of the VFW and Royal Neighbors. Aerial bombs were fired during the parade.

The parade halted for one minute on Court Street while taps were blown in memory of the soldier and sailor dead.

Some consider it significant that Edison has shifted the two to opposite parts of Maryland.

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY FUND

Eddie Cantor had a talk with the President when he was in Washington recently, at which time Roosevelt disclosed important plans for changing his birthday fund.

The President said that he wanted to broaden the aid to include all crippled children, not merely those who had suffered from paralysis. He also expressed the hope that the work would continue after he left the White House, and that it was too important to be linked to one person or personality.

Note—Eddie Cantor originated the slogan "March of Dimes" for the early stages of the President's Birthday Fund, and Roosevelt has always considered Cantor a sort of partner in the campaign.

WHITE HOUSE DIPLOMAT

Inside the White House, plans have been discussed for the appointment of a diplomatic secretary to the President. The tentative plan to attach a State Department official to the White House staff to sift foreign problems, arrange the visits of diplomats.

Real fact is that the President more and more is his own Secretary of State. Many diplomats now ask to see the President direct, rather than Cordell Hull. To do this, they now have to go through the State Department, where there are always delays and sometimes irritation.

Suggested as the new diplomatic attache is Hugh Wilson, former Ambassador to Germany, who has been cooling his heels in the State Department rather unhappily ever since he was recalled from Berlin.

The National Guard members were mobilized at 7 a. m. Saturday. Following inspection Saturday they went into training. The men were dismissed to go to their homes at 8:30 p. m. Saturday and returned at 7 a. m. Sunday. An instruction period and marching were included in the morning program. In the afternoon the guardsmen took a convoy trip to Logan Elm and received instruction in guard duty. The men were dismissed at 5 p. m. Sunday.

Lieutenant Joseph M. Lynch went to Athens Saturday where plans were discussed for the training period to be held November 22 to 26.

ONLY FOUR BIG ELEVENS BOAST OF CLEAN MARKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—The nation's major unbeaten and untied football teams stood today at an unimposing grand total of four—Tennessee, Texas A. and M., Duquesne and Cornell. Erased from the list of the peerless was Notre Dame, which finally found one of its innumerable close scores turned against it, Iowa winning, 7 to 6. Of the four elevens still boasting perfect records only Tennessee managed to run up a score Saturday, swamping The Citadel, as expected, 34 to 0. The others barely managed to pull through and, in keeping with predictions, may yet be upset before the final gun is sounded.

Texas A. and M. nosed out Southern Methodist by 6 to 2, Duquesne got a scare from unimpressive North Carolina State but won by 7 to 0 and Cornell just did manage to avoid a beckoning setback by taking Colgate, 14 to 12.

There's No Great Mystery about Cigarette Tobaccos

THERE ARE FOUR TYPES of tobaccos found in the more popular cigarettes, namely... Bright, Maryland, Burley and Turkish.

ALL THESE TOBACCOS except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision), are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or a chair.

AT THE AUCTION SALE the tobacco is piled in baskets weighing from about 100 to 500 pounds and each purchaser buys all of his tobaccos by competitive bidding for the particular piles he wants.

THE CHESTERFIELD BUYERS buy the best of these mild ripe tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination... the right amounts of Burley and Bright... just enough Maryland... and just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

IT IS BECAUSE of this combination that Chesterfields are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MILDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.

Legion Scheduling Million Dollar Night To Be December 1

Approximately 65 men, veterans of the World and Spanish American Wars, attended the rabbit supper held by the American Legion Saturday night in observance of Armistice Day.

Members of Henry Page Folsom Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Spanish American war veterans were guests of the Legion. Spanish American War veterans present were Mouser Crayne, A. J. Lyle, Dr. B. R. Bales, C. E. Roof and Fred Donnelly.

An informal program was conducted with E. C. Ebert as master of ceremonies. Mr. Ebert called on various veterans to tell where they were 21 years ago when the Armistice was signed. Brief remarks were made by the Spanish-American War veterans.

Karl Herrmann announced plans for the Million Dollar Night to be conducted by the Legion on December 1.

The rabbit supper followed a parade sponsored by the VFW. Music was furnished by the VFW band, drum and bugle corps of the Legion and the Circleville High School senior band. Units participating in addition to the Legionnaires and VFW members were the Circleville unit of the National Guard, Medical Corps, Redmen, Women's Auxiliary of the VFW and Royal Neighbors. Aerial bombs were fired during the parade.

The parade halted for one minute on Court Street while taps were blown in memory of the soldier and sailor dead.

Adelphi: John L. Coleman to first lieutenant.

Laurelville: George R. Bowers to first lieutenant.

The third inmate, Carl DeGraw, Cleveland, walked away while working in a cornfield on the grounds. None of the trio was reported to be dangerous.

Some consider it significant that Edison has shifted the two to opposite parts of Maryland.

Note—Reason for the undercover campaign against Acting Secretary Edison on the part of some naval officers is the fact that he has finally determined that he, and not the Admiral is going to rule the roost.

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY FUND

Eddie Cantor had a talk with the President when he was in Washington recently, at which time Roosevelt disclosed important plans for changing his birthday fund.

The President said that he wanted to broaden the aid to include all crippled children, not merely those who had suffered from paralysis. He also expressed the hope that the work would continue after he left the White House, and that it was too important to be linked to one person or personality.

Note—Eddie Cantor originated the slogan "March of Dimes" for the early stages of the President's Birthday Fund, and Roosevelt has always considered Cantor a sort of partner in the campaign.

WHITE HOUSE DIPLOMAT

Inside the White House, plans have been discussed for the appointment of a diplomatic secretary to the President. The tentative plan to attach a State Department official to the White House staff to sift foreign problems, arrange the visits of diplomats.

Real fact is that the President more and more is his own Secretary of State. Many diplomats now ask to see the President direct, rather than Cordell Hull. To do this, they now have to go through the State Department, where there are always delays and sometimes irritation.

Suggested as the new diplomatic attache is Hugh Wilson, former Ambassador to Germany, who has been cooling his heels in the State Department rather unhappily ever since he was recalled from Berlin.

NATIONAL GUARD UNIT HAS BUSY WEEK END TASK

Saturday and Sunday comprised a busy period for Circleville men who are members of the Ohio National Guard.

The National Guard members were mobilized at 7 a. m. Saturday. Following inspection Saturday they went into training. The men were dismissed to go to their homes at 8:30 p. m. Saturday and returned at 7 a. m. Sunday. An instruction period and marching were included in the morning program. In the afternoon the guardsmen took a convoy trip to Logan Elm and received instruction in guard duty. The men were dismissed at 5 p. m. Sunday.

Lieutenant Joseph M. Lynch went to Athens Saturday where plans were discussed for the training period to be held November 22 to 26.

There are 46 Circleville men in the Service Battery unit of the National Guard. The Medical Detachment, special troops, trains independently of the service battery.

Inspection of the Circleville troops by a regular army officer was dispensed with and reports were filed instead.

ONLY FOUR BIG ELEVENS BOAST OF CLEAN MARKS

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—The nation's major unbeaten and untied football teams stood today at an unimposing grand total of four—Tennessee, Texas A. and M., Duquesne and Cornell. Erased from the list of the peerless was Notre Dame, which finally found one of its innumerable close scores turned against it, Iowa winning, 7 to 6. Of the four elevens still boasting perfect records only Tennessee managed to run up a score Saturday, swamping The Citadel, as expected, 34 to 0. The others barely managed to pull through and, in keeping with predictions, may yet be upset before the final gun is sounded.

Texas A. and M. nosed out Southern Methodist by 6 to 2, Duquesne got a scare from unimpressive North Carolina State but won by 7 to 0 and Cornell just did manage to avoid a beckoning setback by taking Colgate, 14 to 12.

There's No Great Mystery about Cigarette Tobaccos

ALL THESE TOBACCOS except Turkish (which is bought direct from the planters in Turkey and Greece) and Maryland (which is bought through sealed bids under government supervision), are bought at public auction, just like any other auction where you might have bought in a table or a chair.

AT THE AUCTION SALE the tobacco is piled in baskets weighing from about 100 to 500 pounds and each purchaser buys all of his tobaccos by competitive bidding for the particular piles he wants.

THE CHESTERFIELD BUYERS buy the best of these mild ripe tobaccos for the Chesterfield blend. And it is Chesterfield's Combination... the right amounts of Burley and Bright... just enough Maryland... and just enough Turkish—that makes the big difference between Chesterfield and other cigarettes.

IT IS BECAUSE of this combination that Chesterfields are COOLER, have a BETTER TASTE and are DEFINITELY MILDER. They are made of the world's best cigarette tobaccos. You can't buy a better cigarette.

LATIN-AMERICAN CREDIT

LATIN-AMERICA is supposed to be a vast potential market for American goods, especially since the European war shut off the main flow of European exports to that region. American producers and exporters are naturally eager to take advantage of it. But there are serious obstacles.

One of them is the fact that the countries concerned, generally speaking, have no way of paying us for our manufactured goods except by their own raw materials or other goods which we do not want. It is hard for them to raise the money to pay us in cash.

This situation is especially serious because the Central and South American countries already owe us about $2,000,000,000 on bonds bought by our investors, which their governments have defaulted. Naturally, while those debts stand against them, our government and people are not inclined to give them much credit.

Both our government and our private financial institutions, however, seem willing to help in working out some readjustment of the finances of the defaulted countries and restoring their credit. If the governments concerned would go half way, and make a serous effort to get their finances on a sounder basis, there might be a big development of Pan-American trade to the advantage of the whole hemisphere.

WALKERS LEARN CAUTION

PEDESTRIANS have long been listed among the worst traffic offenders. Many of those killed by trucks or automobiles have lost their lives because they disregarded crosswalks or signals. They have caused almost as many headaches for traffic officers and safety councils as reckless drivers.

But recently highway traffic reports have begun to show an improved attitude on the part of the pedestrian. According to the National Safety Council, 8 per cent fewer walkers were killed in the first nine months of this year than in the same period of 1938.

At the end of September there had been 570 fewer deaths from traffic accidents of all kinds than a year ago, and pedestrians were largely responsible. The figure for traffic accidents not involving walkers had declined very little for the country as a whole.

Perhaps more safeguards have been set up to protect the pedestrian, but on the whole he is showing greater inclination to take care of himself and to play fair with the driver who has the right of way.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

TECHNICAL FAULTS

WASHINGTON.—Not all of the facts have leaked out yet regarding the Admiral's bungling of the brand new U. S. destroyers built as part of the Roosevelt big navy program.

It is generally known that the destroyers are top-heavy, but two other facts are not so well understood. One is that on at least three destroyers, the deck plates have buckled badly in what is technically known as a "moderately rolling sea". For this reason it has been necessary to increase the weight of the decks and thus make the destroyers even more top-heavy.

Second is a metallurgical defect in the rivets. The Navy still insists upon using rivets in its vessels, refusing to concede the technical advantages of welding construction. And because of the defective rivets, literally millions of them will have to be replaced.

Of the 28 new destroyers now completed or under construction, 20 are top-heavy. The other eight are not far along in their construction and their design can be changed.

Reason for these construction boners lies in the antequated system of bureaus within the Navy Department and the jealousy of certain admirals who can't get over the fact that they graduated at the head of their classes at Annapolis years ago.

INSIDE REASON

What happened was that additional weight, such as extra armor plate, was put on the destroyers at high points, which brought their center of gravity too far above the water. The Bureaus of Engineering and Ordnance are supposed to certify these weights, while the Bureau of Construction and Repair makes the stability calculations, which are very intricate.

In the case of the new destroyers, the three of the private naval yards which are building the vessels feared that the center of gravity was too high and pointed this out to the admirals. The private builders even offered to submit the center of gravity test to Gibbs and Cox, who are private design agents.

The Admirals, however, declined the offer. They decided that they could do no wrong.

NAVAL HOUSECLEANING

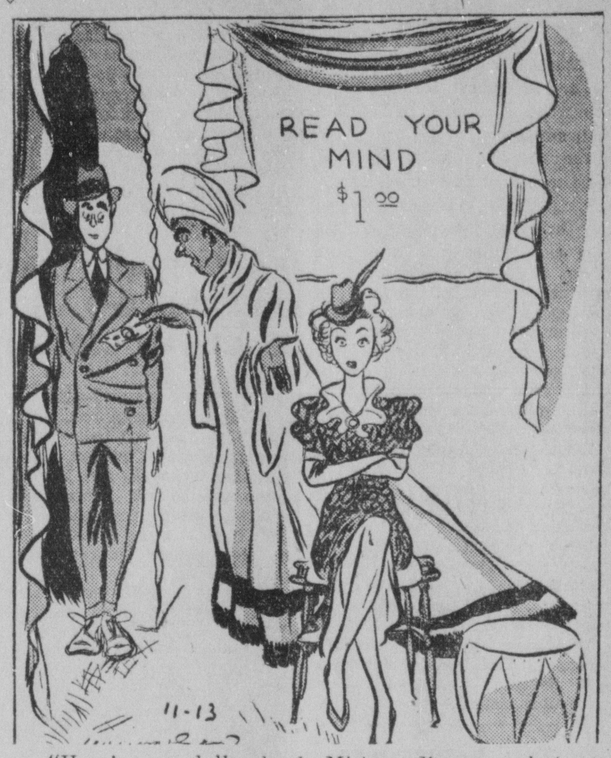

Result has been (1) that lead ballast has been affixed to the keels to keep the vessels from rolling over in the water; and (2) Acting Secretary Edison has given the Admirals a thorough shake-up.

Admiral William G. DuBose, Chief of Naval Construction, had claimed that the trouble was an engineering defect, not a construction defect. But Admiral Harold G. Brown, Chief of Naval Engineering, hotly replied that DuBose was at fault.

So Secretary Edison has shifted Admiral DuBose to the naval experimental basin in western Maryland, where he can play

No Proof That Hair Turns White Overnight

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AN INQUIRY from a nurse in training says, "Our class in physiology is studying the hair and its care. The question we are discussing is: 'Is it possible for the hair to turn white overnight, and, if so, what causes it?'"

There is no certain and authentically reported case of the hair turning white overnight. Byron, in the "Prisoner of Chillon," is the source of the common belief, but Byron was not a dependable pathologist. His statement about the hair turning was:

"My hair is gray, but not with years,
Nor grew it white
In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There is the case of a clergyman in Nottingham, reported in the Memoirs of the Medical Society of London, whose daughter at the age of 13 experienced a change from jet blackness of hair to white in a single night, but this was confined to a spot on the back of the head one and one-half inches in length.

Distressing News

Bichat, an eminent French physician of the early nineteenth century, had a personal acquaintance whose hair became almost entirely gray as a result of some distressing news that reached him.

Byron had reference to Ludovico Sforza, an Italian nobleman.

Dr. Dewees reported a case of a woman whose hair turned gray in a single hour between visits.

The cause of gray hair is said to be the formation of air bubbles in the hair shaft. I do not know what the proof of this is, but in 1882, in the Canada Journal of Medical Science, was reported a case of sudden graying of hair due to business worry. The microscope showed a great many air vesicles in the hair shaft.

The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal for 1851 reported a case of a man, 30 years old, whose hair was scared white by a grizzly bear.

Another case of the hair turning gray was that of a Californian in a gambling camp who placed his entire savings of $1,100 on the turn of a card. The next day his hair was perfectly white, but there is no record of how the card turned out.

Louis, of Bavaria, learned of the innocence of his wife, whom he had put to death on a suspicion of her infidelity, and his hair turned white almost immediately, but this was in 1294 and the records are somewhat mixed.

De Schweinitz reported in 1889 that the hair of the upper eyelid of a patient turned white in a week. This is the last report that we have.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

I STOOD THERE and listened to those voices coming from the office at this early hour of the morning. It wasn't yet seven o'clock. What could it mean? I listened, the voices continued. Low and even they seemed to be absorbed in their conversation.

I wanted my rings. Also, I was consumed with curiosity to know who were behind the closed doors. I stretched out my hand the second time and lightly rapped.

"Come in."

It was Lancy's voice, slightly raised in tone which reached my ears. I opened the door and walked in. He was seated at the desk, beside him his assistant, Scott, with a notebook in his hands. As well as though I had been with them, I knew what they were doing. Scott was giving an accurate report of the search of Hill House.

Lancy greeted me with a cordial glance and rallying smile.

"Have you remembered something else this early in the morning?" he said.

I shook my head and smiled back at him.

"Not for you. I left my rings on the table last night and came to get them."

"All right. Go ahead, Scott."

Without a breath of hesitation, Scott picked up the thread of the report where he had dropped it, at my entrance, and continued:

"There's a picture there I'm sure is he, but the hair is white."

"Hair can be dyed," retorted Lancy.

I had found my rings and was going noiselessly toward the door, when Lancy's words jolted my memory back to Rhoda's experience at the Cape Cod Salon. I stopped short and swung around to face Lancy. As he glanced inquiringly at me, I demanded:

"Are you talking about Joseph Barry?"

The abrupt question, coming from me, must have startled the detective. It certainly startled me, myself. A week ago I wouldn't have dared interrupt a conference between two business men. Now I had nonchalantly disturbed the police at work. At that moment I realized my stodginess was gone. I had been pitch-forked into the Hill House situation, but it had changed my whole life.

Lancy's eyes narrowed speculatively:

"We are."

"Then I've something to tell you. Listen." In detail I related Rhoda's experience, ending with:

"She told it to me yesterday."

Scott was looking at me in open-mouthed amazement.

"Do you always come across with the exact information needed at the moment?" he quizzically demanded.

"She does," Lancy replied for me. "If I don't solve this case, it won't be because she hasn't done her full share."

I looked for a teasing smile on each face, instead I met sincere approval. They meant what they said.

"Oh, please," I cried. I looked from one to the other, took to my heels and ran. I couldn't bear to have them praise me for something which had casually been tossed in my lap.

Saturday morning was a busy time at Hill House. I don't know if Mrs. Peake were as fussy about everything as Chloe. That woman went over the house with dry mop and vacuum while I did the dusting. When she finished each room was immaculate. She sent me out to cut fresh roses, while she did the amount of baking which she considered proper for over Sunday. When I came in, with my first load, she met me with as long a face as it was possible for her pleasant one to be.

"Miss Gordon," she began, "I can't get into that office. I've been to the door three times an' each time that detective man jus' waved me away, like I don't have no right there at all."

"He's probably busy, Chloe, and doesn't want to be disturbed," I replied soothingly.

"He may be busy, I don't know nothin' about that, but he's atalkin' over that 'phone. That's what he's adoin'. An' he's been doin' the same thin' every time I opened the door."

"I suppose that a great deal of their work is done that way," I answered. I was talking as much to myself as to Chloe. I was consumed with curiosity myself.

"That room's got to be done!" Chloe planted herself squarely before me. "Mis Peake always cleaned every room in this house on Friday an' Satday, an'—now that she's gone, it's goin' to be jus' as clean as if she was adoin' it her own self."

Chloe's lips were set in a mutinous line and her eyes sparkled dangerously. It was up to me to soothe her ruffled feelings. I took the first way which occurred to me.

"And it shall be, Chloe," I responded placatingly. "Every other room is in apple pie order." (Why apple-pie, why not lemon or quince?) "I'll tell you what I'll do. If Captain Lancy is still busy there this afternoon, I'll get up early in the morning and clean it. I'll be glad to," I added hastily as she gave me a rather disgusted glance.

"I'm a good church woman, Miss Gordon. There's one thing I always do and I intend to keep on doing."

"What is that, Chloe?"

"Go to church." Rock firmness was in her voice. "I always go to first mass an' Mis Peake said that was plenty time enough fo' me to come to work." She looked at me, with a glance which dared me to challenge her statement.

"Why, of course, Chloe," I said relievedly. "That is just what you are to do tomorrow. In everything you are to do just as you have been in the habit of doing. I'll attend to the office." I allowed a trace of firmness to enter my voice. I felt that this was a situation when I should do so.

The firmness won. Chloe's pugnaciousness vanished. Her sunny smile returned and her eyes twinkled as she declared:

"Then I'll gits on with my work. 'Spects that's what I better do an' stop my foolishness."

I never knew why Chloe adopted the attitude she did. It was possible that she expected me to try to interfere in her Sunday hours, though why that should have entered her mind I have never been able to conceive.

Anyway, our slight skirmish was ended, and I went on about my flower gathering with a lighter heart. I kept one eye on the office, but all day Lancy was shut up there with Scott, Chief Forrest and various troopers who tramped in and out. There seemed to be an air of tension. Something was certainly going on which entailed much telephoning and many consultations. Could it be that what I had told that morning would be the means of placing handcuffs on Joseph Barry's wrists?

It wasn't a pleasant thought. But I comforted myself with the knowledge that I had merely confirmed Lancy's suggestion of dyed hair. He left nothing to chance. He wouldn't have made such a comment without following it through. What I had told merely hastened the inevitable end.

Just before dinner, I made my last attempt to get into the office. As I neared the door, I heard voices as usual, so I turned away, determined to clean the room in the morning.

When I was a few feet from the door, it flew open and a voice said: "Here she is now. Miss Gordon!"

I swung around to face Haines. His face wore a grimmer look than I had seen before.

"Will you come in? Captain Lancy wants you."

In the office the detective greeted me briefly but pleasantly.

"Miss Gordon, do you know if there has been any cleaning or repainting done on the outside of any of the buildings here at Hill House since Mrs. Peake died?"

"So far as I know, there has not," I answered. "I'll ask Chloe and Josie, if you wish. I wouldn't put in beyond Chloe to scrub the whole outside of EVERY building if she thought they needed it."

"That's the way we feel," nodded the chief. "Now, do you suppose if you asked her that question she would keep still about it?"

"I'm sure she would, if I asked her to do so." I was positive of that.

"Then ask her, please? I'll see Dr. Peake and Miss Peake, myself," the detective added.

Chloe seemed much surprised at my question, but readily agreed to be silent regarding it.

"Deed, I ain't done no cleanin' or paintin'. Miss Peake had everythin' all done up fresh this spring, an' there ain't no need of fussin' with anythin' like that again this year."

Lancy accepted my report with a courteous word, and I went on about my own affairs, but his question remained in my mind.

Early the next morning, I crept downstairs and mercilessly used the duster, dry mop and vacuum. Maybe I broke a sabbath rule, but I had the satisfaction of seeing a nice clean room for the men to work in.

I was just finishing when Lancy appeared. He frowned at the sight of my cleaning apparatus and made straight for the telephone.

WORLD AT A GLANCE . . . . .

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WITH CONGRESS' adjournment politics will be rampant again. It's been pretty well muzzled during the neutrality debate on Capital Hill. True, there's been a conflict on the embargo and related issues, but it hasn't been on party lines. Republicans have bolted G. O. P. ranks to vote for embargo repeal, as desired by the Democratic administration. Not all of them, but a fair proportion. Contrariwise, some Democrats have been as vehement anti-repealers, against White House wishes, as any anti-repeal Republican.

The anti-administration Democrats might have been expected to be solidly against repeal, simply because the administration was asking for it, but they've been split also. For instance, Senator Clark of Missouri and Glass of Virginia have been rated as anti-New Dealers, despite their Democratic labels. They disagreed as to the arms embargo, however, Clark apposed repeal as vigorously as Republican Senator Nye of North Dakota, who invented the embargo. Glass has been an equally vigorous repealist.

President Roosevelt knew he couldn't prevent a neutrality fight, but urged the scrappers to waive partisanship, on the well-known ground that politics ought to "end at the water's edge." The lawmakers compiled. They pulled one another's hair energetically, to the extent of indulging in some very unparliamentary language. There was talk to the effect that the discussion was kept on a "high plane," but considerable of it hasn't sounded so to the press gallery. Nevertheless, it's a fact that the rumpus hasn't been politically partisan.

There probably never has been a case in which senators and representatives have noted their individual honest convictions as generally as in this one.

A TRUCE ONLY

But this inter-party truce has been a truce only.

Plenty of ugly domestic differences of opinion still are hanging fire. They're well within our waters' edges.

The New Dealers are as determined as ever to go ahead with their program.

The Democratic anti-New Dealers, most of the Republicans and a scattering of independents (not all) are as determined as ever to block it.

They'll go to the partisan mat in January.

Unless, possibly—

If the war gets worse than it is at present.

If it does get worse, who can tell?

If it does, there may be some more water's edging, with the New Deal forgotten.

But the chances are that it won't get much worse during the winter. The weather will be adverse to very fierce military operations for the next few months.

Politics will have time to boil and bubble throughout the rest of November, on through December, January and February, and well into March. By then partisanship will be so red-hot, war or no war, that it'll be too late to cool it off ahead of the national conventions.

Or supposing that the war, happily, does frazzle out in the meantime, that ends it; we'll have politics anyway.

The 1940 Republican convention promises to be comparatively peaceful. Of course there'll be rival candidates, but they're not vicious rivalries.

The Democratic affair, though! Oo, oi! The two Democratic groups hate each other worse than Democrats hate Republicans or vice versa. John N. Garner now looms as the conservatives' outstanding "white hope." If he's out-nominated, it wouldn't be surprising to see a third party ticket. Even if not, a lot of conservative Democrats are sure to prefer a Republican to another New Deal administration. Of if Garner (or some other old-timer) wins, there's certain to be a shoal of New Dealers who won't support him.

Naturally the Republicans will do their darndest to capitalize on this anticipated Democratic division.

Doesn't this forecast a mean partisan campaign following the conventions?

At that stage of the game the water's edge consideration may only complicate matters.

LATIN-AMERICAN CREDIT

LATIN-AMERICA is supposed to be a vast potential market for American goods, especially since the European war shut off the main flow of European exports to that region. American producers and exporters are naturally eager to take advantage of it. But there are serious obstacles.

One of them is the fact that the countries concerned, generally speaking, have no way of paying us for our manufactured goods except by their own raw materials or other goods which we do not want. It is hard for them to raise the money to pay us in cash.

This situation is especially serious because the Central and South American countries already owe us about $2,000,000,000 on bonds bought by our investors, which their governments have defaulted. Naturally, while those debts stand against them, our government and people are not inclined to give them much credit.

Both our government and our private financial institutions, however, seem willing to help in working out some readjustment of the finances of the defaulted countries and restoring their credit. If the governments concerned would go half way, and make a serous effort to get their finances on a sounder basis, there might be a big development of Pan-American trade to the advantage of the whole hemisphere.

WALKERS LEARN CAUTION

PEDESTRIANS have long been listed among the worst traffic offenders. Many of those killed by trucks or automobiles have lost their lives because they disregarded crosswalks or signals. They have caused almost as many headaches for traffic officers and safety councils as reckless drivers.

But recently highway traffic reports have begun to show an improved attitude on the part of the pedestrian. According to the National Safety Council, 8 per cent fewer walkers were killed in the first nine months of this year than in the same period of 1938.

At the end of September there had been 570 fewer deaths from traffic accidents of all kinds than a year ago, and pedestrians were largely responsible. The figure for traffic accidents not involving walkers had declined very little for the country as a whole.

Perhaps more safeguards have been set up to protect the pedestrian, but on the whole he is showing greater inclination to take care of himself and to play fair with the driver who has the right of way.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

TECHNICAL FAULTS

WASHINGTON.—Not all of the facts have leaked out yet regarding the Admiral's bungling of the brand new U. S. destroyers built as part of the Roosevelt big navy program.

It is generally known that the destroyers are top-heavy, but two other facts are not so well understood. One is that on at least three destroyers, the deck plates have buckled badly in what is technically known as a "moderately rolling sea". For this reason it has been necessary to increase the weight of the decks and thus make the destroyers even more top-heavy.

Second is a metallurgical defect in the rivets. The Navy still insists upon using rivets in its vessels, refusing to concede the technical advantages of welding construction. And because of the defective rivets, literally millions of them will have to be replaced.

Of the 28 new destroyers now completed or under construction, 20 are top-heavy. The other eight are not far along in their construction and their design can be changed.

Reason for these construction boners lies in the antequated system of bureaus within the Navy Department and the jealousy of certain admirals who can't get over the fact that they graduated at the head of their classes at Annapolis years ago.

INSIDE REASON

What happened was that additional weight, such as extra armor plate, was put on the destroyers at high points, which brought their center of gravity too far above the water. The Bureaus of Engineering and Ordnance are supposed to certify these weights, while the Bureau of Construction and Repair makes the stability calculations, which are very intricate.

In the case of the new destroyers, the three of the private naval yards which are building the vessels feared that the center of gravity was too high and pointed this out to the admirals. The private builders even offered to submit the center of gravity test to Gibbs and Cox, who are private design agents.

The Admirals, however, declined the offer. They decided that they could do no wrong.

NAVAL HOUSECLEANING

Result has been (1) that lead ballast has been affixed to the keels to keep the vessels from rolling over in the water; and (2) Acting Secretary Edison has given the Admirals a thorough shake-up.

Admiral William G. DuBose, Chief of Naval Construction, had claimed that the trouble was an engineering defect, not a construction defect. But Admiral Harold G. Brown, Chief of Naval Engineering, hotly replied that DuBose was at fault.

So Secretary Edison has shifted Admiral DuBose to the naval experimental basin in western Maryland, where he can play

No Proof That Hair Turns White Overnight

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AN INQUIRY from a nurse in training says, "Our class in physiology is studying the hair and its care. The question we are discussing is: 'Is it possible for the hair to turn white overnight, and, if so, what causes it?'"

There is no certain and authentically reported case of the hair turning white overnight. Byron, in the "Prisoner of Chillon," is the source of the common belief, but Byron was not a dependable pathologist. His statement about the hair turning was:

"My hair is gray, but not with years,
Nor grew it white
In a single night,
As men's have grown from sudden fears."

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There is the case of a clergyman in Nottingham, reported in the Memoirs of the Medical Society of London, whose daughter at the age of 13 experienced a change from jet blackness of hair to white in a single night, but this was confined to a spot on the back of the head one and one-half inches in length.

Distressing News

Bichat, an eminent French physician of the early nineteenth century, had a personal acquaintance whose hair became almost entirely gray as a result of some distressing news that reached him.

Byron had reference to Ludovico Sforza, an Italian nobleman.

Dr. Dewees reported a case of a woman whose hair turned gray in a single hour between visits.

The cause of gray hair is said to be the formation of air bubbles in the hair shaft. I do not know what the proof of this is, but in 1882, in the Canada Journal of Medical Science, was reported a case of sudden graying of hair due to business worry. The microscope showed a great many air vesicles in the hair shaft.

The Boston Medical and Surgical Journal for 1851 reported a case of a man, 30 years old, whose hair was scared white by a grizzly bear.

Another case of the hair turning gray was that of a Californian in a gambling camp who placed his entire savings of $1,100 on the turn of a card. The next day his hair was perfectly white, but there is no record of how the card turned out.

Louis, of Bavaria, learned of the innocence of his wife, whom he had put to death on a suspicion of her infidelity, and his hair turned white almost immediately, but this was in 1294 and the records are somewhat mixed.

De Schweinitz reported in 1889 that the hair of the upper eyelid of a patient turned white in a week. This is the last report that we have.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for an extremely lively and interesting state of affairs, with business, employment and other ambitious projects under fine impetus. This state of affairs may come from innovation, unique methods and audacious moves, even in speculative and risky chances, where timidity and lack of initiative are swept aside.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively year. There may be much initiative and audacity, with highly-stimulated forces and faculties. Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

I STOOD THERE and listened to those voices coming from the office at this early hour of the morning. It wasn't yet seven o'clock. What could it mean? I listened, the voices continued. Low and even they seemed to be absorbed in their conversation.

I wanted my rings. Also, I was consumed with curiosity to know who were behind the closed doors. I stretched out my hand the second time and lightly rapped.

"Come in."

It was Lancy's voice, slightly raised in tone which reached my ears. I opened the door and walked in. He was seated at the desk, beside him his assistant, Scott, with a notebook in his hands. As well as though I had been with them, I knew what they were doing. Scott was giving an accurate report of the search of Hill House.

Lancy greeted me with a cordial glance and rallying smile.

"Have you remembered something else this early in the morning?" he said.

I shook my head and smiled back at him.

"Not for you. I left my rings on the table last night and came to get them."

"All right. Go ahead, Scott."

Without a breath of hesitation, Scott picked up the thread of the report where he had dropped it, at my entrance, and continued:

"There's a picture there I'm sure is he, but the hair is white."

"Hair can be dyed," retorted Lancy.

I had found my rings and was going noiselessly toward the door, when Lancy's words jolted my memory back to Rhoda's experience at the Cape Cod Salon. I stopped short and swung around to face Lancy. As he glanced inquiringly at me, I demanded:

"Are you talking about Joseph Barry?"

The abrupt question, coming from me, must have startled the detective. It certainly startled me, myself. A week ago I wouldn't have dared interrupt a conference between two business men. Now I had nonchalantly disturbed the police at work. At that moment I realized my stodginess was gone. I had been pitch-forked into the Hill House situation, but it had changed my whole life.

Lancy's eyes narrowed speculatively:

"We are."

"Then I've something to tell you. Listen." In detail I related Rhoda's experience, ending with:

"She told it to me yesterday."

Scott was looking at me in open-mouthed amazement.

"Do you always come across with the exact information needed at the moment?" he quizzically demanded.

"She does," Lancy replied for me. "If I don't solve this case, it won't be because she hasn't done her full share."

I looked for a teasing smile on each face, instead I met sincere approval. They meant what they said.

"Oh, please," I cried. I looked from one to the other, took to my heels and ran. I couldn't bear to have them praise me for something which had casually been tossed in my lap.

Saturday morning was a busy time at Hill House. I don't know if Mrs. Peake were as fussy about everything as Chloe. That woman went over the house with dry mop and vacuum while I did the dusting. When she finished each room was immaculate. She sent me out to cut fresh roses, while she did the amount of baking which she considered proper for over Sunday. When I came in, with my first load, she met me with as long a face as it was possible for her pleasant one to be.

"Miss Gordon," she began, "I can't get into that office. I've been to the door three times an' each time that detective man jus' waved me away, like I don't have no right there at all."

"He's probably busy, Chloe, and doesn't want to be disturbed," I replied soothingly.

"He may be busy, I don't know nothin' about that, but he's atalkin' over that 'phone. That's what he's adoin'. An' he's been doin' the same thin' every time I opened the door."

"I suppose that a great deal of their work is done that way," I answered. I was talking as much to myself as to Chloe. I was consumed with curiosity myself.

"That room's got to be done!" Chloe planted herself squarely before me. "Mis Peake always cleaned every room in this house on Friday an' Satday, an'—now that she's gone, it's goin' to be jus' as clean as if she was adoin' it her own self."

Chloe's lips were set in a mutinous line and her eyes sparkled dangerously. It was up to me to soothe her ruffled feelings. I took the first way which occurred to me.

"And it shall be, Chloe," I responded placatingly. "Every other room is in apple pie order." (Why apple-pie, why not lemon or quince?) "I'll tell you what I'll do. If Captain Lancy is still busy there this afternoon, I'll get up early in the morning and clean it. I'll be glad to," I added hastily as she gave me a rather disgusted glance.

"I'm a good church woman, Miss Gordon. There's one thing I always do and I intend to keep on doing."

"What is that, Chloe?"

"Go to church." Rock firmness was in her voice. "I always go to first mass an' Mis Peake said that was plenty time enough fo' me to come to work." She looked at me, with a glance which dared me to challenge her statement.

"Why, of course, Chloe," I said relievedly. "That is just what you are to do tomorrow. In everything you are to do just as you have been in the habit of doing. I'll attend to the office." I allowed a trace of firmness to enter my voice. I felt that this was a situation when I should do so.

The firmness won. Chloe's pugnaciousness vanished. Her sunny smile returned and her eyes twinkled as she declared:

"Then I'll gits on with my work. 'Spects that's what I better do ar.' stop my foolishness."

I never knew why Chloe adopted the attitude she did. It was possible that she expected me to try to interfere in her Sunday hours, though why that should have entered her mind I have never been able to conceive.

Anyway, our slight skirmish was ended, and I went on about my flower gathering with a lighter heart. I kept one eye on the office, but all day Lancy was shut up there with Scott, Chief Forrest and various troopers who tramped in and out. There seemed to be an air of tension. Something was certainly going on which entailed much telephoning and many consultations. Could it be that what I had told that morning would be the means of placing handcuffs on Joseph Barry's wrists?

It wasn't a pleasant thought. But I comforted myself with the knowledge that I had merely confirmed Lancy's suggestion of dyed hair. He left nothing to chance. He wouldn't have made such a comment without following it through. What I had told merely hastened the inevitable end.

Just before dinner, I made my last attempt to get into the office. As I neared the door, I heard voices as usual, so I turned away, determined to clean the room in the morning.

When I was a few feet from the door, it flew open and a voice said: "Here she is now. Miss Gordon!"

I swung around to face Haines. His face wore a grimmer look than I had seen before.

"Will you come in? Captain Lancy wants you."

In the office the detective greeted me briefly but pleasantly.

"Miss Gordon, do you know if there has been any cleaning or repainting done on the outside of any of the buildings here at Hill House since Mrs. Peake died?"

"So far as I know, there has not," I answered. "I'll ask Chloe and Josie, if you wish. I wouldn't put in beyond Chloe to scrub the whole outside of EVERY building if she thought they needed it."

"That's the way we feel," nodded the chief. "Now, do you suppose if you asked her that question she would keep still about it?"

"I'm sure she would, if I asked her to do so." I was positive of that.

"Then ask her, please? I'll see Dr. Peake and Miss Peake, myself," the detective added.

Chloe seemed much surprised at my question, but readily agreed to be silent regarding it.

"Deed, I ain't done no cleanin' or paintin'. Miss Peake had everythin' all done up fresh this spring, an' there ain't no need of fussin' with anythin' like that again this year."

Lancy accepted my report with a courteous word, and I went on about my own affairs, but his question remained in my mind.

Early the next morning, I crept downstairs and mercilessly used the duster, dry mop and vacuum. Maybe I broke a sabbath rule, but I had the satisfaction of seeing a nice clean room for the men to work in.

I was just finishing when Lancy appeared. He frowned at the sight of my cleaning apparatus and made straight for the telephone.

If it does get worse, who can tell?

If it does, there may be some more water's edging, with the New Deal forgotten.

But the chances are that it won't get much worse during the winter. The weather will be adverse to very fierce military operations for the next few months.

Politics will have time to boil and bubble throughout the rest of November, on through December, January and February, and well into March. By then partisanship will be so red-hot, war or no war, that it'll be too late to cool it off ahead of the national conventions.

Or supposing that the war, happily, does frazzle out in the meantime, that ends it; we'll have politics anyway.

THE CONVENTION

The 1940 Republican convention promises to be comparatively peaceful. Of course there'll be rival candidates, but they're not vicious rivalries.

The Democratic affair, though! Oo, oi! The two Democratic groups hate each other worse than Democrats hate Republicans or vice versa. John N. Garner now looms as the conservatives' outstanding "white hope." If he's out-nominated, it wouldn't be surprising to see a third party ticket. Even if not, a lot of conservative Democrats are sure to prefer a Republican to another New Deal administration. Of if Garner (or some other old-timer) wins, there's certain to be a shoal of New Dealers who won't support him.

Naturally the Republicans will do their darndest to capitalize on this anticipated Democratic division.

Doesn't this forecast a mean partisan campaign following the conventions?

At that stage of the game the water's edge consideration may only complicate matters.

Iowa's 7-6 Edge Over Irish Proves Feature

By Chester Youll

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 — Though Ohio State still clung tenaciously to its conference lead, Iowa, surging forward from the obscurity of a half dozen discouraging years, was the bright star of Big Ten football today following its "miracle win" over Notre Dame.

Rated the second weakest eleven in the conference at the beginning of the season, the Hawkeyes sailed through three Big Ten victories as against only a single defeat, by Michigan, and then came through in a blaze of glory before 46,000 of their home town fans Saturday with a 7 to 6 victory over the undefeated and untied Irish, fairly overloaded with capable reserve material.

It was difficult today to decide whether the principal hero of the occasion was Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa head coach, or Nile Kinnick, the man who won the game on the field by scoring a touchdown within 40 seconds of the end of the first half and then coolly drop kicking the extra point.

Extra Point Missed

A later Notre Dame touchdown was thrown into the dust bin of gridiron history because the Irish had the misfortune to miss the extra point. Thus the boys from South Bend got a taste of their own bitter medicine. All season they had been winning by hairline margins, and here they lost in the same manner.

Kinnick and seven of his teammates played through the entire 60 minutes of heavy going, and Kinnick backers after the game said his performance was the final spike that should drive home all American honors for him.

There was much praise, too, for Dr. Anderson. Brought to Iowa City from Holy Cross, where last year he was generally credited with developing "Bullet Bill" Osmanski, ranking star of the National Pro league, Anderson took over what looked to be a collection of misfits with a miserable 1938 record. He said he would give wider latitude to the judgment of players, especially Kinnick. The harvest this policy has produced now is evident.

Some interesting figures resulted from the game. It marked the first defeat of the Irish at the hands of a Big Ten team since they lost to Northwestern in 1035. It was the Indiana school's second loss to Iowa in its only two starts against that outfit and only its fifth setback by a conference club in 20 years. Oddly enough, the other time the Hawkeyes beat the Irish, in 1921, Anderson was captain of the South Bend gang.

Lesson for Wolves

A milder surprise saw Michigan fold up against Minnesota, 20 to 7, at Ann Arbor. Harold Van Every and George Franck hit their full stride and gave a fine lesson in ballcarrying to the crack Wolverine pair, Tom Harmon and Paul Kromer.

Northwestern continued its indifferent season by dropping a 3 to 0 decision to Purdue. Ohio State rolled over Chicago 61 to 0 in what hardly could be called a contest, and looks almost a cinch to take the Big Ten crown. Wisconsin stumbled through the Illinois encounter and was beaten, 7 to 0, and Indiana invaded the East to be bowled over by Fordham, 13 to 0.

As to the future: Iowa, which faces Minnesota next week, has a chance to tie for or even win the title but the probabilities for the second eventuality are so unlikely they almost can be ruled out. Despite the success of Illinois against Michigan, lightning seldom strikes twice in the same spot and Zuppke's men hardly look to have the stuff to whip Ohio at Columbus this coming Saturday.

About This And That
In Many Sports

As the curtain fell on the 1939 grid season of Circleville High School a few glances behind and a few more ahead are not amiss . . . . .The Tigers won two ball games this season, defeating Greenfield—in a game that was said by Ohio officials to be the biggest upset of the day—and Frankfort, and lost to Holy Rosary, West Jefferson, Lancaster, Wilmington, Washington C. H., Hillsboro and Bremen. . . . .At least two of these games should have been put on the right side of the ledger, but they weren't. . . . .The touchdown the Tigers scored against Rosary was one of the two that were counted against the Columbus Irish. . . . .West Jeff beat the Tigers by one touchdown and has not been defeated this year—Circleville is about the strongest school the Jeffs play, though. . . . .

* * * * *

Next year's schedule will call for West Jefferson, Holy Rosary, Bremen, the four league teams, Lancaster and a school to replace Frankfort. . . . .There is a possibility that only two games, Washington C. H. and Greenfield, will be played on foreign fields* * * * *

Coaches Roy Black and Tom Armstrong will have several holes to fill next year. . . . .Walters, Orr and Thompson, ends, are gone; Hays, a tackle; Harden, Warner and Shea, guards; Smith, quarterback, and Bowsher, fullback and tackle will be missing. . . . .For the ends the mentors will have Paul Jackson, Dud Smallwood, John Woods, Virgil Wolf and a couple of others, with possibilities being that Jim Moorehead and Carl Eby may be moved up from the backfield. . . . .The tackle problem remains fair to middling, John Sabine, a sophomore now, and Russ Liston, regular left tackle this year, returning. . . . .In addition there will be Binkley, Sims, Zaenglein, Bob Goeller and a couple of others. . . . .The guards offer another problem, Clark Martin being the only experienced man returning. . . . .Some squad members believe that Bob Brown will be moved over to guard from cented with Bill Thornton getting the snapperback job. . . . . .The backfield will be filled with youngsters, from all indications. . . . .Eby and Jenkins are returning and so is Jim Callihan, a fast boy, to represent the seniors on the squad . . . . .Geib, sophomore who played 11 of the last 12 quarters this season at quarterback, will be a junior and so will Harry Clifton, who understudied him. . . . .Normie Anderson, another sophomore, will be giving someone a battle for a position and so will Joe Staley, hindered all this year by injuries. . . . . Up from the freshman squad will be Don Sowers, a hardrunning fullback, and George Trego, an excellent punter and a boy with plenty of size for a freshman. . . . . Other boys whose chances to show this year were few may develop into real contenders before the next season starts to make things interesting for boys who look now like they may win starting roles . . . . .Coach Black has expressed much confidence in the crop of youngsters coming up* * * * *

KEENE, N. H.,—Arithmetic study for small children should be made up of games and activities that extend experienced and give meaning, Dr. Guy M. Wilson, professor of education at Boston University, told the New Hampshire state teacher's association. Dr. Wilson, author of arithmetic texts, said, "Addition alone provides drill enough for many children in grade three and even bright children should not undertake more than subtratcion in grade three. Most work in fractions decimals and measures as now done is useless and should be omitted.

OHIO STATE SET TO TURN BACK ZUP'S VARSITY

Illinois And Michigan In Path Of Buckeyes On Way To Big Ten Title

CHICAGO FALLS, 61 To 0

Work Of Several Younger Athletes Features Runaway Game

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13 — Needing only one more victory to be assured of at least a tie for the Western Conference title, Ohio State University's high riding football team today forgot the Chicago massacre and concentrated on Saturday's Homecoming match against Illinois.

In walloping Chicago, 61 to 0, the Bucks did no different than various other aggregations who have met the Maroons this fall. Michigan, Harvard and Virginia all thumped the hapless windy city eleven by staggering margins.

For the first time this season, the Bucks substitutes were given a prolonged workout and acquitted themselves creditably. The work of Halfback Jack Graf, Fullback John Hallabrin and Bill Coyer was particularly noteworthy.

Ohio's closest rival for the Conference crown was Iowa's amazing Hawkeyes who upset the famed Notre Dame eleven. If State beats both Illinois and Michigan, it can win the pennant regardless of what happens to Iowa. If the Scarlet and Gray lads lose one and win one while Iowa is winning two, then the campaign will end in a tie. If State loses both remaining contests and Iowa wins both of its two, then the Hawkeyes cop the honors. And Illinois, inconceivably, has a chance of landing in a first place tie if two games and State and Iowa suffer defeats.

None of the Bucks was hurt in the Chicago incident and should be in tip top shape for the game against the same Illinois aggregations which astounded the 1939 football world with a 16 to 7 triumph over Michigan a couple of weeks back. The Illinois defense will be the Bucks chief worry.

BULLIES CLIMB OUT OF CLASS TO LOSE 22-0

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13—Columbus professional football fans today conceded that the Cleveland Rams, of the national league, were the best pro team in the state.

They could believe nothing else after seeing the Rams dispose of the local favorites, the Columbus Bullies of the American league, who until heir game with their lakeside contemporaries boasted an eight-game winning streak and were leading their league by a handsome margin. When the fireworks ended, the Rams had 22 points and the Bullies exactly none.

The game's ultimate outcome was never in doubt from the moment Ram Quarterback Vic Spadaccini booted three points from the eight yard stripe in the opening quarter. The Bullies were simply out-classed, and never during the game could they get inside the Clevelanders' 35-yard marker.

Drake's sprint off right guard and Hall's pass to Benton added another dozen points in the second quarter for the marching Rams. Both scores came from eight yards out. The pass scored on the last down, with less than 10 seconds remaining of the half.

The Bullies stiffened in the third period, but Gaylon Smith, fast-stepping Ram Halfback, gave them a headache in the final canto when he intercepted a pass on the Columbus 30 and raced to the seven, from whence he ambled over the pay-off stripe in just two tries. Corby Davis' placekick added the last point.

The Ram outline completely outcharged the Bullies throughout the game, and often appeared part of the Columbus backfield as they swarmed through the porous frontline of the Bullies.

Score by periods:

Cleveland	3	12	0	7	—22

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13—Georgie Pace, Negro bantamweight and Cleveland's contribution to the list of world champions, was to show his fistic wares tonight for the first time since his recognition as top-dog of the N. B. A. He will tangle with Bobby Dochety, Toronto, Canada, battler, in a 10-round non-title go in the Columbus Auditorium.

Pace will spot pounds to Dochety, who weighs in as a featherweight.

Iowa's 7-6 Edge Over Irish Proves Feature

By Chester Youll

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 — Though Ohio State still clung tenaciously to its conference lead, Iowa, surging forward from the obscurity of a half dozen discouraging years, was the bright star of Big Ten football today following its "miracle win" over Notre Dame.

Rated the second weakest eleven in the conference at the beginning of the season, the Hawkeyes sailed through three Big Ten victories as against only a single defeat, by Michigan, and then came through in a blaze of glory before 46,000 of their home town fans Saturday with a 7 to 6 victory over the undefeated and untied Irish, fairly overloaded with capable reserve material.

It was difficult today to decide whether the principal hero of the occasion was Dr. Eddie Anderson, Iowa head coach, or Nile Kinnick, the man who won the game on the field by scoring a touchdown within 40 seconds of the end of the first half and then coolly drop kicking the extra point.

Extra Point Missed

A later Notre Dame touchdown was thrown into the dust bin of gridiron history because the Irish had the misfortune to miss the extra point. Thus the boys from South Bend got a taste of their own bitter medicine. All season they had been winning by hairline margins, and here they lost in the same manner.

Kinnick and seven of his teammates played through the entire 60 minutes of heavy going, and Kinnick backers after the game said his performance was the final spike that should drive home all American honors for him.

There was much praise, too, for Dr. Anderson. Brought to Iowa City from Holy Cross, where last year he was generally credited with developing "Bullet Bill" Osmanski, ranking star of the National Pro league, Anderson took over what looked to be a collection of misfits with a miserable 1938 record. He said he would give wider latitude to the judgment of players, especially Kinnick. The harvest this policy has produced now is evident.

Some interesting figures resulted from the game. It marked the first defeat of the Irish at the hands of a Big Ten team since they lost to Northwestern in 1035. It was the Indiana school's second loss to Iowa in its only two starts against that outfit and only its fifth setback by a conference club in 20 years. Oddly enough, the other time the Hawkeyes beat the Irish, in 1921, Anderson was captain of the South Bend gang.

Lesson for Wolves

A milder surprise saw Michigan fold up against Minnesota, 20 to 7, at Ann Arbor. Harold Van Every and George Franck hit their full stride and gave a fine lesson in ballcarrying to the crack Wolverine pair, Tom Harmon and Paul Kromer.

Northwestern continued its indifferent season by dropping a 3 to 0 decision to Purdue. Ohio State rolled over Chicago 61 to 0 in what hardly could be called a contest, and looks almost a cinch to take the Big Ten crown. Wisconsin stumbled through the Illinois encounter and was beaten, 7 to 0, and Indiana invaded the East to be bowled over by Fordham, 13 to 0.

As to the future: Iowa, which faces Minnesota next week, has a chance to tie for or even win the title but the probabilities for the second eventuality are so unlikely they almost can be ruled out. Despite the success of Illinois against Michigan, lightning seldom strikes twice in the same spot and Zuppke's men hardly look to have the stuff to whip Ohio at Columbus this coming Saturday.

About This And That

In Many Sports

As the curtain fell on the 1939 grid season of Circleville High School a few glances behind and a few more ahead are not amiss . . . . .The Tigers won two ball games this season, defeating Greenfield—in a game that was said by Ohio officials to be the biggest upset of the day—and Frankfort, and lost to Holy Rosary, West Jefferson, Lancaster, Wilmington, Washington C. H., Hillsboro and Bremen. . . . .At least two of these games should have been put on the right side of the ledger, but they weren't. . . . .The touchdown the Tigers scored against Rosary was one of the two that were counted against the Columbus Irish. . . . .West Jeff beat the Tigers by one touchdown and has not been defeated this year—Circleville is about the strongest school the Jeffs play, though. . . . .

* * * * *

Next year's schedule will call for West Jefferson, Holy Rosary, Bremen, the four league teams, Lancaster and a school to replace Frankfort. . . . .There is a possibility that only two games, Washington C. H. and Greenfield, will be played on foreign fields* * * * *

Coaches Roy Black and Tom Armstrong will have several holes to fill next year. . . . .Walters, Orr and Thompson, ends, are gone; Hays, a tackle; Harden, Warner and Shea, guards; Smith, quarterback, and Bowsher, fullback and tackle will be missing. . . . .For the ends the mentors will have Paul Jackson, Dud Smallwood, John Woods, Virgil Wolf and a couple of others, with possibilities being that Jim Moorehead and Carl Eby may be moved up from the backfield. . . . .The tackle problem remains fair to middling, John Sabine, a sophomore now, and Russ Liston, regular left tackle this year, returning. . . . .In addition there will be Binkley, Sims, Zaenglein, Bob Goeller and a couple of others. . . . .The guards offer another problem, Clark Martin being the only experienced man returning. . . . .Some squad members believe that Bob Brown will be moved over to guard from cented with Bill Thornton getting the snapperback job. . . . . .The backfield will be filled with youngsters, from all indications. . . . .Eby and Jenkins are returning and so is Jim Callihan, a fast boy, to represent the seniors on the squad . . . . .Geib, sophomore who played 11 of the last 12 quarters this season at quarterback, will be a junior and so will Harry Clifton, who understudied him. . . . .Normie Anderson, another sophomore, will be giving someone a battle for a position and so will Joe Staley, hindered all this year by injuries. . . . . Up from the freshman squad will be Don Sowers, a hardrunning fullback, and George Trego, an excellent punter and a boy with plenty of size for a freshman. . . . . Other boys whose chances to show this year were few may develop into real contenders before the next season starts to make things interesting for boys who look now like they may win starting roles . . . . .Coach Black has expressed much confidence in the crop of youngsters coming up* * * * *

KEENE, N. H.—Arithmetic study for small children should be made up of games and activities that extend experienced and give meaning, Dr. Guy M. Wilson, professor of education at Boston University, told the New Hampshire state teacher's association. Dr. Wilson, author of arithmetic texts, said, "Addition alone provides drill enough for many children in grade three and even bright children should not undertake more than subtratcion in grade three. Most work in fractions decimals and measures as now done is useless and should be omitted.

OHIO STATE SET TO TURN BACK ZUP'S VARSITY

Illinois And Michigan In Path Of Buckeyes On Way To Big Ten Title

CHICAGO FALLS, 61 To 0

Work Of Several Younger Athletes Features Runaway Game

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13 — Needing only one more victory to be assured of at least a tie for the Western Conference title, Ohio State University's high riding football team today forgot the Chicago massacre and concentrated on Saturday's Homecoming match against Illinois.

In walloping Chicago, 61 to 0, the Bucks did no different than various other aggregations who have met the Maroons this fall. Michigan, Harvard and Virginia all thumped the hapless windy city eleven by staggering margins.

For the first time this season, the Bucks substitutes were given a prolonged workout and acquitted themselves creditably. The work of Halfback Jack Graf, Fullback John Hallabrin and Bill Coyer was particularly noteworthy.

Ohio's closest rival for the Conference crown was Iowa's amazing Hawkeyes who upset the famed Notre Dame eleven. If State beats both Illinois and Michigan, it can win the pennant regardless of what happens to Iowa. If the Scarlet and Gray lads lose one and win one while Iowa is winning two, then the campaign will end in a tie. If State loses both remaining contests and Iowa wins both of its two, then the Hawkeyes cop the honors. And Illinois, inconceivably, has a chance of landing in a first place tie if two games and State and Iowa suffer defeats.

None of the Bucks was hurt in the Chicago incident and should be in tip top shape for the game against the same Illinois aggregations which astounded the 1939 football world with a 16 to 7 triumph over Michigan a couple of weeks back. The Illinois defense will be the Bucks chief worry.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13—Columbus professional football fans today conceded that the Cleveland Rams, of the national league, were the best pro team in the state.

They could believe nothing else after seeing the Rams dispose of the local favorites, the Columbus Bullies of the American league, who until heir game with their lakeside contemporaries boasted an eight-game winning streak and were leading their league by a handsome margin. When the fireworks ended, the Rams had 22 points and the Bullies exactly none.

The game's ultimate outcome was never in doubt from the moment Ram Quarterback Vic Spadaccini booted three points from the eight yard stripe in the opening quarter. The Bullies were simply out-classed, and never during the game could they get inside the Clevelanders' 35-yard marker.

Drake's sprint off right guard and Hall's pass to Benton added another dozen points in the second quarter for the marching Rams. Both scores came from eight yards out. The pass scored on the last down, with less than 10 seconds remaining of the half.

The Bullies stiffened in the third period, but Gaylon Smith, fast-stepping Ram Halfback, gave them a headache in the final canto when he intercepted a pass on the Columbus 30 and raced to the seven, from whence he ambled over the pay-off stripe in just two tries. Corby Davis' placekick added the last point.

The Ram outline completely outcharged the Bullies throughout the game, and often appeared part of the Columbus backfield as they swarmed through the porous frontline of the Bullies.

Score by periods:

Columbus	0	0	0	0	0— 0
Cleveland	3	12	0	7	—22

GEORGIE PACE TO SHOW

COLUMBUS, Nov. 13—Georgie Pace, Negro bantamweight and Cleveland's contribution to the list of world champions, was to show his fistic wares tonight for the first time since his recognition as top-dog of the N. B. A. He will tangle with Bobby Dochety, Toronto, Canada, battler, in a 10-round non-title go in the Columbus Auditorium.

Pace will spot pounds to Dochety, who weighs in as a featherweight.

Miss Bowers is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Bowers, South Court Street. Mr. Hilyard is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hilyard, North Court Street.

Circleville had two contests because of its 10 entrants. The large number of entrants permits the city to have two contestants in the county event.

The first contest included declamations by the Misses Bowers and Fickardt, Patricia Bennett, Marilyn Lutz and Edna Mae Henn. Judges were the Rev. W. C. Peters of Ashville, W. O. Bumgarner, Circleville Route 5, and E. C. Rector of near Williamsport.

In the second contest were Mr. Hilyard, Miss Strawser, Robert Brehmer, Jr., David Eagleson and Margaret Goode. All contestants are seniors and members of the public speaking class of Samuel Johnson.

Judges for the second contest were the Rev. H. O. Harbaugh, Ashville; Mrs. R. R. Bales and F. K. Blair, both of Circleville.

The date for the county contest has not been determined. It will be decided in the near future, the Rev. C. F. Bowman, chairman of the county contests, announced Monday.

Both of the winners in the city contest gave the same declamation. It was "The Way Out," by Nathaniel M. Gupstill.

ASHVILLE

Ashville, Phone 79

We agreed with him without any argument when Sam Hummel told us Saturday evening at headquarters that he was most through husking out that 15-acre field of corn which he had in most part gathered into shock earlier in the Fall. And in telling of it, asked us if we didn't think that was doing pretty good for an 85-year-old? These 85 years will be completed this coming Saturday, the 18th. And in reminiscing, Sam enjoys telling, among other stories of the old Madison band days, about the night he and Mart Smith, after band practice, "borrowed" one of Hank Noecker's fine watermelons. Both Hank and Mart have passed on, and if after another eighty-five or so, Sam should join them, they'll have to settle that best they can. The "watermelons" our gang always "borrowed" had feathers on 'em, and roasted done or raw, they sure were good. No, "Wall" Plum is not guilty. Too much of a youngster to get in on these parties.

Fred Curry with his new partner, Herb Gregg, (Curry & Gregg now) have completed "pouring" cement for the several post required in the erection of the new park shelter house, in size 40x80 with 10-feet-high ceiling. Under the present plans, the sides and ends are to be open but which later can be closed. The roof, oval in shape, is to be of iron. Several hundred bolts will be required to fasten the parts together. Work will progress toward the completion of the structure as rapidly as the weather will permit, so we were told.

NU-BLUE SUNOCO

The new miracle of gasoline chemistry

Tested, not against ordinary gasolines, but against premium-priced motor fuels . . . by 1475 motorists in 14 cities.

They voted 9 to 1 that Nu-Blue Sunoco equalled or excelled premium-priced gasolines in road performance!

HERE'S HOW THEY VOTED

QUESTIONNAIRE

Comparing this new gasoline to the premium-priced gasoline you have been using:

In knockless performance — As good? Better? Not as good?	91.2% Said As Good or Better
On pick-up, acceleration — As good? Better? Not as good?	93.7% Said As Good or Better
For power, especially on hills — As good? Better? Not as good?	94.9% Said As Good or Better
For all-around performance — As good? Better? Not as good?	90.3% Said As Good or Better

During September and October, 1475 critical users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was in reality Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to premium-priced gasolines they had used previously.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.

The quicker you start using Nu-Blue Sunoco the quicker you'll start!

During September and October, 1475 critical users of premium-priced gasolines were asked to test an unidentified, colorless gasoline which was in reality Nu-Blue Sunoco with the coloring left out. From Florida to Canada, these tests were conducted, not by us, but by independent, unbiased research authorities, and when the returns were summarized, it was found that these motorists voted 9 to 1 in favor of Nu-Blue Sunoco! 9 out of 10 proclaimed it equal or superior to premium-priced gasolines they had used previously.

To make a fair test, don't dilute Nu-Blue Sunoco with other gasoline. Let your tank run practically empty. Then put in Nu-Blue Sunoco. Compare it particularly with premium-priced gasolines. We'll rest our case on your findings.
